

BIG OPENING DAY AT BROOKLYN FAIR

Brooklyn, Sept. 23.—One of the largest crowds ever on Brooklyn fair grounds attended the first big day of the 71st annual exhibition of the Windham County Agricultural society Wednesday. As an attraction, the fair demonstrated that it has lost none of its appeal either to the younger or veteran patrons of a yearly event that draws people from all parts of eastern Connecticut as well as from more distant points.

Just how strong an attraction the fair is for a great many is summed up in the remark of one man on the grounds Wednesday. "This is my 10th year attending this fair." The remark typifies the Old Home spirit that draws together

This shortage of help was given as the reason why the cattle show was not as large this year as it has been in the past. Some of the finest herds in the county were not represented. One farmer told of offering a man $10 just to bring a pair of oxen and a calf to the fair, but the man turned down the offer, on the ground that he could spare no time for such a purpose.

The exhibits in all the strictly agricultural departments made up in quality, however, for what some divisions lacked in quantity and the observer was not left long without being convinced that Windham county farmers are producing banner products of many kinds.

Fruit, flowers, vegetables and grains were in their usual sections in the exhibition building, which was thronged throughout the day. Exhibits by Brooklyn and Canterbury granges were really splendid and set a standard that friends of the fair would like to have seen emulated throughout the building.

Only a pessimist of hopelessly dark vision could have stood before these grange displays without feeling the call of the land and sensing the supreme importance of husbandry. To an epicure these grange displays were little less than a banquet table. One man said that these were about everything from soup to nuts in the sections that had been so skillfully and attractively arranged by the grange members. In these exhibits were examples of many features of special agricultural, dairying, preserving and other domestic endeavor on the farm.

Established that a Windham county farmer and his good wife and family may live in abundance on the products of the township's acres of industry in their watchword while the rest of the world (and all of its troubles) rolls by.

Noted in the Brooklyn grange exhibit were boxes of strawberries and raspberries grown by Judge Oscar F. Atwood of that town. The berries were delicious and direct evidence that these fine delicacies may be had in the fall as well as in the spring and early summer. Judge Atwood said that he kept the strawberries and runners picked off his blueberry plants until Aug. 1. After that the plants were allowed to bear and began turning out ripe berries on August 18 and are still doing so.

One section of the exhibit hall was given over to the use of Miss Charlotte E. Owen, field secretary for the Red Cross in eastern Connecticut. Miss Owen got much attention during the day and distributed quantities of literature setting forth what the great mercy organization is doing in these post-war days and what it stands prepared to do in the way of extension and special work as the needs of any particular community seem to demand.

Close beside the Red Cross section was another devoted to the interests of the "Star" East Relief organization. Mrs. H. E. Wilson was in charge of this display and she found scores of interested listeners to her story of what is being done for the relief of the suffering Armenians and of how the relief organization is exerting itself to save them from starvation and other horrors. A set of photographs conveyed vividly to the minds of all that the Armenian people will do one photograph after another showed five ragged children while a companion picture showed the same group of little ones neatly and warmly clothed with garments procured by the Near East committee with just one $10 bill given by some generous and sympathetic person.

The Plant-Garden company, of Norwich, is occupying its usual space in the exhibition hall. Not many who were on the fair grounds Wednesday missed a visit to this section, where musical instruments were on display and much in use throughout the day.

The cattle show this year was set up in the usual high stand of the Brooklyn fair. The herds that would make a great show are in the county, and better herds than ever before, but the farmers could not get the help nor the time to get them to Brooklyn. However, some quality cattle were shown and the fact demonstrated that Windham county farmers are coming to realize that there is more money in thoroughbred herds than in herds of scrub.

A group of Ayrshires shown by L. S. Barstow and Sons, of East Killingly and another group of Guernseys shown by John Stornberg of Abington and registered Jerseys shown by Harold Stone of Brooklyn bore striking evidence of what some farmers are doing to improve some herds. The Barstow and Stornberg animals were purchased as the result of the Windham County Farmers' association campaign in favor of more thoroughbred herds. Another cattle exhibitor who had some fine animals at the fair was Henry Dorrance of Plainfield, who showed Ayrshires from his Home Mill farm.

A few sheep and goats were added exhibits in the livestock division. The poultry show was another department of the fair where the entries were not numerous this year, but there were some fine pens of various breeds. A culling exhibition in this department during the afternoon was of interest to the poultry raisers and the general public.

A notable feature at the fair Wednesday was Joseph B. Stetson, of the town of Brooklyn. Mr. Stetson is as much a fixture at the fair as any man may hope to be. For 52 years he has been happily connected with the organization in various capacities, acting as the efficient secretary for more than 3 years. At 17 Mr. Stetson began as one of the ticket takers at the main gate and from then on gave his time and effort for more than half a century to make the fair a success. Mr. Stetson is a life member of the fair association, but has resigned all of his offices and he now finds time to really enjoy the show that he long strove to make entertaining for others.

The fair's midway Wednesday was a busy place. The sawed and fast-thinking men favorably described as tinkers were more numerous than ever and fully as charged with pep. They gave the crowds a good time and something for their money, provided one was lucky, and served to add a lively bit of color and picturesque to a gala day.

Afternoon as usual, found the devotees of racing crowding the grandstand and along the rails of the home and quarter stretches. They were there to see the races and seemed to enjoy them thoroughly. J. Carl Witter was up in the judge's stand acting as starter and gave his usual high class service in this capacity.

The result of the races follows:

About 25 1-2 per cent. of the number at the fair Wednesday came in automobiles. Every kind of a machine from a heavy steam shovel was in the throng. Cars were everywhere on the grounds. One man who was curious to know just how many machines were inside the Brooklyn fair volunteered to count them for The Bulletin man. He hadn't returned up to dark and apparently became bewildered and lost in a mass of machines and figures.

Farm machinery exhibits, milking devices and other such things were shown in abundance at the fair and received a great deal of attention.

NORWICH MARKET REPORT FOR GROWERS AND DEALERS

Active Demand For: Eggs, lettuce, beets, cantaloupes.

Moderate Demand For: Carrots, peppers, cucumbers, sweet corn.

Slow Demand For: Squash, cabbage, tomatoes, parsley.

Market Conditions.

In spite of the cold weather which damages vegetables, the supply offered is abundant. Prices in general were firm. The season for native cantaloupes is drawing to an end, as they are very much affected by frost. Beans are being supplied liberally. Cauliflower are now being offered more liberally than at any time during the season. There

NO LICENSE VOTE IN SMALL TOWNS THIS YEAR

Small town elections on the first Monday in October, 1920, will be devoid of one feature of other years, which many times made interesting contests between the "wet" and the "dry" forces, for the present year will see no vote on the license question. One year ago, with faint hopes on the part of certain interests, that the wartime prohibition law would be lifted long enough to allow a little saloon business before January 16, 1920, and that the supreme court of the United States would do something to the Volstead act, or the constitutional amendment, itself, a number of Connecticut towns went through the formality of voting on license, although it didn't do them any good.

Eleven towns voted on the liquor question and, in some instances the votes were close enough to make things interesting, even if they turned out to be nothing at stake. Towns comprising

Bolton, Coventry, Killingly, Milford, New Milford, Plainfield, Stonington, Suffield and Windsor voted in favor of another drink, while the towns, Canaan and Plainville decided against the festive schooner.

The official returns showed that 7,185 voters in the eleven towns expressed their opinion on the liquor question at the 1920 October election, 4,100 favoring license and 3,085 opposing it, the license supporters outnumbering the "dry" voters by 1,115. This "wet" vote of the voters of the eleven towns on license follows:

Town	Yes	No
Bolton	41	12
Canaan	49	40
Coventry	140	147
Killingly	544	478
Milford	672	276
New Milford	256	296
Plainfield	457	264
Stonington	223	227
Suffield	249	211
Windsor	227	235

Men invariably overestimate their capacity. They never know when they have enough until after they acquire too much.

CUT THIS OUT

OLD ENGLISH RECIPE FOR CATARRH, CATARRH OF DEAFNESS AND HEAD NOISES

If you know of someone who is troubled with catarrh of the ears, head noises or ordinary catarrh, cut out this recipe and hand it to them and you may have been the means of saving some poor sufferer from total deafness. In England, scientists for a long time past have recognized the fact that catarrh is a constitutional disease and necessarily requires constitutional treatment.

Sprays, douches and nose douches are liable to irritate the delicate air passages and force the disease into the middle ear, which frequently means total deafness. Else the disease may be driven down the air passages towards the lungs, which is equally as dangerous. The following formula, which is used extensively in the army hospitals, is a constitutional treatment and should prove especially efficacious to sufferers here who live under more favorable climate conditions.

Secure from your druggist 1 ounce of Epsom salt, 1/2 ounce of borax, 1/2 ounce of a little granulated sugar, stir until dissolved. Take one or two spoonfuls four times a day. This will often bring quick relief from distressing head noises. Closed nostrils, sore throat, and hoarseness become easy and hearing improves as the inflammation in the ear is removed. Reduced Epsom salt used in this way acts directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system and has a tonic action that helps to obtain the desired results. The preparation is easy to make, costless and is pleasant to take. Every person who has catarrh or head noises or is hard of hearing should give this treatment a trial.

The Cabriolet

Men Prize the Notable Utility of This Distinctive Hudson

TODAY one question towers above all the rest. That dominant issue is endurance—especially as it affects motor economy. It commands attention to the virtual exclusion of all else.

For men, who depend upon their cars for every day rapid transit, have come to know that endurance rules every phase of motor economy.

And the marked preference for Hudson that this standard of judgement made inevitable, is reflected upon every city street, upon every highway by which business men with country and suburban homes, travel to and from business.

Note the great numbers of Hudson Coupes and Cabriolets. These two types are especially favored by busy men of consequence. Because they give luxurious, rapid conveyance in all weather and conditions of travel. And because their reliability is so sure and steadfast, that not even a remote concern visits the owner as to his certainty of destination, or the dependable use of his car when he wants it.

The supply of enclosed models, which we were able to secure as a reserve for the fall demand, will be totally inadequate to prevent a recurrence of last year's shortage. But we can, for the present, assure reasonably early delivery of a limited number of Coupes, Cabriolets, Touring Limousines and Limousines, on orders that are placed promptly.
